Los jóvenes y la parroquia

Estamos a mitad de verano y nuestros hijos de vacaciones. Pero desafortunadamente para muchos de ellos las vacaciones de la escuela son también vacaciones de la iglesia. Además, a medida que se hacen mayores, la celebración de la eucaristía se convierte en algo que pierde sentido y que es solo "cosa de los mayores." Muchos padres, para los que la fe es un aspecto importante de sus vidas, no saben que hacer para animar a sus hijos adolescentes a participar en las misa, y piensan que lo único que pueden hacer es forzarlos a regañadientes.

Una de las formas en las que se los padres puede alentar a sus hijo es haciendo de su hogar un lugar donde la fe es vivida a diario, quizás diciendo la bendición antes de la cena, rezando alguna novena en casa o participando, como familia, en algún proyecto o programa parroquial y o de servicio. De esta forma los jóvenes empiezan a entender que las misa no es un evento aislado, sino parte de una forma de vida que es reflejada en la familia.

Además, nuestro ejemplo debe ir más allá del hogar. Si queremos que nuestros hijos se sientan parte de la parroquia y participen en ella, nosotros los adultos también tenemos que serlo. Como padres de familia estamos llamados a participar en la vida de la Iglesia local. Podemos poner nuestra fe en práctica sirviendo en algún ministerio, siendo miembros de un grupo de oración o de matrimonios, y participando activamente en la misa y en las otras celebraciones parroquiales. Al igual que en otras muchas áreas, la importancia de la influencia de los padres sobre los jóvenes no se puede desestimar.

Además del ejemplo de una fe vivida en casa y en la parroquia, otra forma de ayudar a los jóvenes a sentirse parte de la Iglesia y, por extensión, de participar en su vida sacramental es invitándolos a:

- Ser miembros de algún grupo juvenil en la parroquia, donde pueden hacer amigos, encontrar apoyo y ver que hay otros jóvenes para los que la fe es importante.
- Participar en algún ministerio parroquial, de forma que se convierten en participantes activos, donde sus talentos son reconocidos.
- Apuntarse en algún campamento de verano de la parroquia o de la escuela o secundaria católica, y así ver que pueden divertirse a la vez que participan de una actividad apoyada por la Iglesia.
- Hacerse voluntario en algún proyecto de servicio, para que vean como la fe tiene implicaciones prácticas y se sientan valorados.

Su amigo y servidor,
Padre Jesús Camacho

Teens and parish life

It is the middle of the summer and our children are on vacation. But unfortunately, for many of them, to be on vacation from school also means to be on vacation from church. Besides, the older they are the more Mass starts to lose its meaning for them, and they start to see it as "an old peoples' thing." The parents, to whom the faith is an important aspect of their lives, do not know what to do to persuade their adolescent children to go to Mass, and they think that the only possible way is to force them to go.

One of the ways in which parents can encourage their children is by making their home a place where their faith is lived daily. This can be done through something as simple as blessings before meals, praying an occasional novena, or participating as a family in a parish program or service opportunity. This would help the young people to understand Mass not as something isolated, but as a part of a way of life, modeled at home.

But we should give examples outside our homes as well. If we want our children to feel they are part of the parish, and we want them to participate in its life, we as adults must do the same. As parents we are called to participate in the life of the local church. We can put our faith into practice by serving as ministers, by joining a parish prayer or marriage group, and participating actively at Mass and the other parish celebrations. As it is the case in other areas, the effectiveness of the parents' influence over their children cannot be underestimated.

Besides the example given by the parents by living the faith at home and at the parish, other ways to help the young feel part of the church, and by extension, to participate in its sacramental life, could be by inviting them to:

- Join the parish youth group, where they can make friends, find support and meet other young people to whom their faith is important.

- Participate in some parish ministry, so that they might become active participants and have their talents recognized.
- Sign up for a summer camp at the parish or a Catholic school, where they will have fun while participating in a church-sponsored activity.
- Volunteer for a service project through which they will learn that our faith has practical implications, and where they will be valued.
